Why this tool matters

Demystifying the construction of the city; handing the hammer and the saw directly to the inhabitants so they can physically shape their own environment.

Evidence we produce

Small-scale, tangible physical interventions (e.g., modular furniture, public space modifications) constructed and tested directly by the community on-site.

Duration & Material

Duration · 1 week of construction, several months of observation

Material · Building materials (wood, metal), hand tools, safety equipment, observational grids

Reference case

The FURNISH project deployed an "Urban Living Lab" in Barcelona, collaborating with Fab Labs to build the "EDUS Point" prototype. This temporary urban intervention served as both a spatial artifact and a social process, allowing continuous testing and community engagement directly on the street, bridging physical and digital layers of urban experimentation,.

Suggested agenda · Brief (10 min) > Method walk-through (15 min) > Animation canvas (60-90 min) > Harvest (20 min)

Demonstrator setup · learn-by-building

Duration

1. Site selection representative + accessible

2. Partnership

owners, makers, users

3. Build

transparent, safe, instrumented

4. Open house

invite scrutiny, document

Harvesting our learnings

After running the canvas, capture three layers of insight.

What inspires me

Stand-out signals, surprising stories, ideas to remember

How to apply it here

Concrete adaptations to our context, our team, our constraints

What we need to be autonomous

Skills, allies, resources, decisions still to secure
