Why this tool matters

Breaking down rigid institutional silos to weave together fragmented funding streams, empowering local actors to stitch their own cohesive urban fabric from the bottom up.

Evidence we produce

A formally approved integrated territorial strategy document that combines funding from various operational programs (ERDF, ESF) governed by a dedicated local steering committee.

Duration & Material

Duration · 6 to 12 months for strategy drafting and funding approval

Material · European Structural Investment Funds (ESIF) guidelines, regional data, partnership agreements

Reference case

Through Cohesion Policy, the European Regional Development Fund (ERDF) specifically promotes Integrated Territorial Investments (ITI) to foster sustainable urban development. By channeling funds into a localized, integrated plan rather than isolated sectoral projects, cities can concurrently address physical infrastructure, social inclusion, and low-carbon transitions under one unified governance model.
