Why this tool matters

Putting the law itself on trial; proving that when a city fails its poorest residents, the fault often lies not in a lack of money, but in the rigid, outdated texts of its own legal code.

Evidence we produce

A structured assessment matrix that scores local planning laws based on their clarity, consistency, and functional effectiveness, accompanied by targeted recommendations for legislative reform,.

Duration & Material

Duration · 1 to 2 months of legal analysis and validation

Material · Planning Law Assessment Framework grids, municipal codes, legal drafting tools

Reference case

UN-Habitat's Planning Law Assessment Framework provides an objective matrix to evaluate the functional effectiveness of urban laws. By scoring regulations on transparency and capacity for implementation, cities can objectively identify where complex, bureaucratic processes allow for the manipulation of public resources, driving targeted legislative amendments to support equitable public space and housing,...
